

the informer

MT presentation, noon Thursday

This Thursday, November 22, there will be a video entitled "Counterpoint" shown in room H113 from noon to 1 pm. If you have always wondered exactly what our Music Therapy department does, this is your chance to see program faculty and graduates working with confused elderly patients. The video is a co-production of Valleyview and the College. Next Thursday, Nov. 27, you will have a chance to try a little music therapy on yourself.

Humanities sponsors readings

There are two readings coming up only a day apart. On Monday, November 26 at 12:30 Roo Borson will be reading in the Studio Theatre (R105), and on Tuesday the 27th, Timothy Findley will be reading from his works at the same time in the same place. Admission is free and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

0 = 213 after 5:30

Have you tried to dial "0" recently after 5:30 pm and received nothing but busy signals? Don't curse the people at the switchboard—they aren't there. Between 5:30 and 8:00 pm the switchboard is moved to the main floor reception area in A building, which means that to get someone you have to dial 213. The Health and Safety Committee is concerned that this could cause some problems, so they're looking into the possibility of moving the number "0" upstairs; meanwhile please bear this item in mind. Next year the telephone system will be replaced and the new system will include a "call forwarding" function to automatically transfer calls.

Mountain Visions

Tuesday at 8 pm at the Centennial Theatre there is an unusual production being CONTINUED...

Nostalgia Corner

Do you recognize this man? We'll give you a hint. The year is 1972 and he is flogging an issue of the Capilano Review. Got it yet? It's Pierre Coupey, veteran Cap English instructor. The photo, incidentally, is courtesy of Bill McPhee, the College's official archivist. If you have memorabilia from the "old days", he is collecting and sorting it out. In the process we've found some ANCIENT photos of people who are still around and we'll accept bribes NOT to print them. Call 324.

Show cont.

presented. Mountain Visions, "an uncommon wilderness adventure" involves wilderness photography and stereo music in a system which involves nine synchronized slide projectors on a 36 by 12 foot movie screen. The photos were taken in Alaska, Canada and the western U.S. and the music which accompanies them ranges from jazz through bluegrass, folk, rock, and classical. The production is about 2 hours long, tickets are $4.50 or $4 for students and seniors, and tickets are available at the door or through the Outdoor Rec dept.

Daycare seeks toys

The Daycare Centre has changed its license and is now accepting two to four year old children. Because of this, any donation of educational toys would be greatly appreciated by the people working there (not to mention the kids). They are particularly looking for push toys, ride-on toys, stacking toys, lock blocks, large leggo, beads and so on. Contact the Daycare Centre at 401 if you can help out.

Theatre students on stage

The Theatre department's press release (which we got because their returned mail was sent to our office by mistake) informs us that Candleford is more than just another evening at the theatre. "Presented in promenade style, the performance invites the audience to become one with the town and its citizens for the night." Among the images and people presented will be Laura, who dreams of days and people past, Mrs. Gubbins and the steadfast Brown who gossip over letters and rounds with the mail, Dorcas Lane, the straight-backed keeper of the town's time and conscience, and poor Looney Joe who warms himself in the glow of the smithy's forge, and revels in the fanfare of the Hunt. Candleford will be playing Thursday, Friday and Saturday Nov. 22-24 and Nov. 29 to Dec. 1 in the Studio, R building. Admission is $5 at the door or $4 with a white pillow (don't ask us, ask them).

Workshop on assisting elderly

Understanding and assisting the confused elderly is the topic of a one day workshop being run through Extension Programs on December 1. "Validation Therapy" is a course designed for health care professionals and support personnel, and also for people who are caring for elderly parents or other relatives. The workshop will explore the physical and personality changes that are a part of the aging process and participants will learn validation therapy techniques which may help in dealing with aging patients. The workshop leader, Naomi Feil, MSW ASW, is nationally recognized for her work with the elderly, and for insights she has provided into the aging process through programs, workshops, films, and writings. The workshop will be held on Saturday the 1st from 9 am to 4 pm in the Lions Gate Hospital Medical Day Centre Activity Room, and the fee is $35. For more information call local 321.

Extras available

If you know of anyone who wanted a copy of the Program from this year's Graduation ceremonies, a few extra copies have turned up and are available through Information Services. Call us at 323/324.

THE FAR SIDE

By GARY LARSON

Aerobics in hell